They raise nothing hero but cotton, and they must sell it or starve. I hey can't eat it, or wear it until after it is manufactured. So the necessity of the South to sell is greater than the North to buy. Their favorite King Cotton, who was to rule the world and bring the starving millions of Europe and the North to the feet of the South, is dethroned. A country that devotes all its energies and capital to the raising of cotton has too many wents that must be supplied from a distance.
